*"Information in the 1830 and 1840 censuses suggests that Deacon John's parents may be identical with the John and Christina Wyse buried at Paradise Mennonite Cemetery in Green Township, Wayne County, Ohio. A Peter Wise, married to Catherine Brandt, was living in Green Township in 1830, but he is not John's father. Peter's reported birthplace is Koppigen, Switzerland. Check further records in Koppigen to see if there might be an uncle-nephew relationship." Quotes from John Springer's letter, Mennonite Historical Library, Goshen, IN, 9/23/2003.

Records in Holland show a couple registered with the same names at this time period, but there's no indication that they are the parents of the Christian Stutzman who died in 1790. It is assumed.

Unnamed wife, a son Jacob and a daughter were massacred by Indians. Father and two sons were kidnapped. Father escaped after three years, sons were returned by Indians after five and seven years. See Descendants of Jacob Hochstetler, the Immigrant of 1736 by Rev. Harvey Hostetler. 1912, 1933, 1977. Taken from 1977 edition, pp. 18ff.

*Daughter Clela Wyse Detter says that her father was named Jephtha at birth; his brother Will changed it to Jefferson before he entered first grade. 9/29/2003

INTRODUCTION

Over the years, as our families have grown and we have become older, we have gradually lost touch with each other. The reunions of the past were discontinued, so the occasions when we would update our family events, renew acquaintances with the familiar ones and learn to know the newcomers in the family were lost as well.

With all of your cooperation, we printed a family genealogy in 1985 which hasn't been updated since then. So many of you have told me how much you refer to the 1985 edition that I decided it was time to update the information because so much has changed in 18 years.

So, with the help of each of you, and the expert help of Mrs. Marlin Rupp (Bueta), typist, my granddaughter-in-law, Mrs. Tully Esterline (Wendy), computer operator extraordinaire, and Rosemary (Wyse) Reimer, historical research specialist, here is the circa August 2003 edition of the Wyse Family History. Enjoy!

Dear Everyone,

For the reunion in 1955 I was asked to write a family history and read it for the program. Rather than reciting a boring list of names, dates and places, I decided that since so many of the family grew up in the house where Christ and Mattie lived, I would write a story as though the house was talking and telling humorous events in the lives of those who lived there.

The fact that the house was not destroyed but was moved cross-country to a new location in the last few years added an interesting conclusion to the story.

After reading it at the 1985 cousins' reunion, several people asked for a copy of it, so I decided to include it as the conclusion of this book.

Since the house is still owned and occupied by descendants of Christ and Mattie Wyse, I have continued the story to the present day and have included pictures of the house at the original location and as it looks today at its present location north of Pettisville.

Shirley Wyse

I am a house. Do you remember the saying, “The walls have ears?” Well, I have and the things I have seen and heard could fill a book. I’m not telling my age, but I was here when young Christian and Magdalena moved in along with little Simon and Ella, their children. And these two children were just the start of things. Why, do you know through the years, they had nine more? They were all born here, so I’ll name them according to age: Ed, Will, Emma, Mandy, Jeff, Dan, Mary, Lavina and Bertha. Altogether, that makes 11 children growing up with me. Oh! The bumps and scratches a poor house like me has to put up with when there are that many children! And noise! Parents think they have it bad when the children are wild and noisy. Well, it's the house that has to take it. For instance, that time Emma and Mandy were doing dishes. That sounds harmless, doesn't it? Well, listen! They had the dishes and dish pans on the table and were busy washing them like good girls. But Mary and Lavina were under the table. One of them moved the lever that holds the table wing up and down came the wing, water, dishes and all! I thought it would go right through my floor but bad as I felt right then, I think two little girls felt much worse. I'm sure they did because they hid under the table for quite a long time before they got up the nerve to come out.

Oh, and speaking of dishes- there were certain times of the day when it was almost impossible to find the three little girls. Every time it was time to wash the dishes the big girls couldn't find the little girls. They always found them in the same place and after a few times, they caught on that the little girls were just trying to get out of the dishes. You say, where were they? Well, you know that little building out back that each home had at that time? Nowadays they are just used to tip over at Halloween, but then they had a definite purpose. Well, this is where the little girls went but when the big girls discovered their tricks, they escorted all three into the house by their ears and not too gently either.

Under the table was the scene of another funny incident. Bertha was lying on my floor under the table with her feet sticking in the air. Her mother scolded her and told her to get her feet down. Bert said, "Well, I have to do something to pass my time."

The girls weren't the only ones who caused trouble. The boys caused trouble for the girls, too. One time the girls did something bad and the boys went and tattled to their mother. She called the girls in and spanked them. The boys were patiently waiting outside the door to see how the girls took their punishment. As the girls walked by, the boys were grinning broadly, thinking they pulled a good one. Well, Lavina couldn't stand their grins, so she tossed her head and said, "Aw, that didn't even hurt." Well, mother overheard her remark and from the sounds I overheard, I think the next one did! At any rate, there was no more laughter.

And speaking of spanking- every time someone broke a dish, they got spanked. One day Lavina broke one. Tricky little Lavina decided to get out of her spanking so she got the stick her mother always used, went to her mother and said, "Here's the stick, Mother. I broke a dish." And just as Lavina had figured, Mother thought, "What a sweet, honest child." She didn't get spanked.

Sometimes the children punished themselves when they did wrong. At this time, the Wysees had a border named Alice Britsch. One time, Mary and Lavina hid just inside the bedroom door and as Alice came into the room, they jumped out and yelled, "Boo!" at her. To their astonished eyes, Alice fell to the floor in a dead faint! They thought they had killed her and were horrified until they saw her move again. They had received their punishment and learned a lesson.

I don't want it to sound like there were only troubles here. There were many beautiful moments with the children as there are in any home. For instance, at night when all the children were in bed asleep, I imagine Mattie would make rounds from one bed to the next to see that all were covered. Children always look like angels when they're asleep. Another beautiful time was when all the family was gathered around the table, heads bowed as they gave thanks for the meal. And then on Sunday morning when everyone was freshly starched and pressed, walking out to go to church. I think I must have smiled on them at those times, too, just as Christ and Mattie did.

My troubles increased as the children grew older. I was looking forward to the day when they would stop running through my rooms, slamming my doors and scratching my woodwork. But as they got older, worse things happened to me. Why, when Ella got married, the bellers came and broke my windows and even shot a hole in my front porch. I thought it would be a fatal wound, but they repaired me.

The boys took advantage of the girls when they wanted to go away. Especially Dan. He would make the girls clean out the cow stable and carry out the fodder so he could go see Lorna. Oh, and one time Dan was out on a date and while he was saying good night, his horse got tired of waiting and came home leaving Dan there. I found out about this when Dan did his explaining about why he got home so late. Of course, I never said anything, but I always had to wonder if Dan might have helped the horse get loose. We'll never know.

Speaking of horses. Christ had a horse named Dewey which Mattie didn't care for in the least. I'm sure you will see why when I tell you what happened. She had the horse and buggy and on the way home she saw something on the road. She stopped, got out and went behind the buggy to pick it up. Just as she started back toward the buggy, Dewey started to go. He went just fast enough to keep just out of Mattie's reach, so she ended up walking all the way home. Another time she was all ready to go somewhere and Dewey and the buggy were waiting at the end of the sidewalk. As soon as Dewey saw her coming down the walk toward the buggy, off he went without her. He was heading west toward Simon and Ella's house so Mattie called and told Simon to stop the horse and head him toward home again. Can you see why she didn't like Dewey too much?

This was such a busy home. There was always some excitement going on somewhere around here. Especially on weekends. I always liked the weekends even though they were a little hectic sometimes. On Friday and Saturday, such baking, cooking and cleaning went on. Everyone was bustling here and there getting 12 or 14 pies baked every week and all kinds of food prepared for any guests who might drop in- and in this home, usually some did. Some Sundays, the children would ask as many as 40 boys and girls to come for dinner, all unexpected, but there was always enough food for everyone. I never could figure out how they managed this, but they did, and from the sounds I overheard it seemed like everyone had a wonderful time.

Sundays were a very busy time for Christ, too. He was the janitor at the church for many years and even though it was only one mile south across country, by the road it was much farther. In the winter, he had to get up very early, go by horse and buggy or sleigh through the snow in the dark and light fires in the seven stoves so that the place would be warm by the time the other people arrived. He had many other duties as well- hauling in the wood, cleaning the church, etc.- but he also took on himself the responsibility of going out to the sheds where the horses and buggies were parked to send all of the wayward boys back into the services. I wonder how many times he found his own boys out there, don't you?

From what I overheard in conversations around my table, I don't think Christ was overpaid for his work. He received the enormous sum of $50 a year!

Well, the years passed and all the older children were married and the younger ones were dating. And such a time they did have! There were three girls bring fellows home at the same time, so you can imagine there were plenty of tricks and good natured arguments. For instance, there was always a mad scramble to get home from church first on Sunday night. Know why? Well, the first home got the parlor, the second got the living room, and the last had to settle for the kitchen. I always thought I had a lovely kitchen for entertaining dates, but I guess my parlor was nicer.

Well, after having 11 children grow up within my walls and seeing them leave and get married, I thought I'd just about done my duty. But I found out I was just getting a good start because when Dan and Lorna got married, they moved in with Christ and Mattie and my troubles began all over again. More babies! Six of them all together. Five boys and one poor little girl. This is the order of their birth: Orval, Kenneth, Lester, Bueta, Wayne and Marvin. So you see, poor Bueta not only had little brothers to help care for, but she had big brothers to make life miserable for her. Especially after they found out she was deathly afraid of worms. After this discovery, she had no peace. Every time they found a worm, they chased her with it and she would scream at the top of her lungs. They weren't always so brave though. If anyone strange came to the door, all the children would run up my back stairs and hide. I don't know why, but they did it every time.

Poor Bueta didn't have any girls to play dolls with, so the only thing left for her to do was play whatever the boys played. I'll give you three guesses what that usually was. You guessed it- ball. And you know, I hear they never out-grew their love of the sport, or any sport for that matter. I overheard someone from Pettisville say that they sometimes see Bueta out playing ball with her boys so I guess she kind of likes it, too.

All of the boys were teases but the one after Bueta the most was Wayne. She could never keep an apron tied because Wayne always opened it for her. Finally, one day she could stand it no more, so she threw what she happened to have in her hand straight at Wayne. This just happened to be an egg and worst of all, she missed him and hit my wall. So she had to clean up the mess. Was I glad to get that egg off my wall! I told you the house is the one that suffers.

When the family came home to visit Grandpa and Grandma Wyse, I used to feel like pulling my shades and locking my doors. All those children and all that noise! I know Dan's children liked it though. The more children that came, the bigger the ball game would be.

After quite a few years, Christ died and it was a very sad time. Shorty after this, Mattie joined him in Glory, too. I missed them because my rooms where they lived were empty. But Dan's family still lived here, so I wasn't completely empty, anyway. I think nothing looks more sad or more lonely than an empty house.

As long as I've been built, I've been used to having a lot of people around. After a number of years, Dan and his family moved somewhere else and another family moved in. Their names were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Frey and family. They lived with me for eight years and then another couple moved in. It was Marvin and Shirley Wyse. Shirley was Christ and Mattie's granddaughter. It certainly seemed strange. In all those years since before the first Wyse's moved in, I had never been without children. Now here was a couple who didn't have any yet. It seemed so lonesome. My whole upstairs was empty. I kept wishing for some children to run through my rooms once again. If I had known what wild Indians they would have, I would've enjoyed my peace and quiet while I had it. I guess they weren't exactly wild, but they sure had pep! First was a girl named Luana. Then came two boys, Tony and Scott. After that there was never a dull moment. Always something going on and my upstairs rang with happy sounds- that's where the toy room was. I don't think that was such a good idea, personally . . . especially if they had company. When the group got to playing I was sure I would lose some of my plaster of my ceiling. I always took those things without any accidents before, but I was getting older so I didn't know if I could stand such rough treatment or not. I don't like to admit that I'm getting older, but while Marvin and Shirley lived here, I got a face-lifting that made me feel and look years younger. They put new siding on and gave me some new windows. These improvements kept me much warmer in the winter and the new picture window gave me a pleasant appearance. It almost looks as if I'm smiling at people as they go by.

After living with me for eight years, they moved into town and I got someone new again. I was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Rupp, but they were in 1W so two other couples lived here until they got back. Now they live with me and I'm happy again- because you see, they have a baby now.

His name is Ricky and he is just seven months old. I like them at that age. Old enough to be cute and too young to do me much damage. When Jueldine and Si moved in, they repainted all my walls and refinished my woodwork. I suppose I'll feel bad every time Ricky scratches me but I know they will take good care of me because you see, Jueldine is Christ and Mattie Wyse's great-granddaughter and I always got along fine with them. I don't know Jueldine and Si too well yet, but I'm going to enjoy knowing them just as I have enjoyed all my families. I love being a house. It's such fun because you get to know so many interesting people.

Well, here it is 1984 and I'll try to fill you in on everything that has happened since the last time I wrote down my thoughts.

Well, Jueldine and Si and their two boys Rick and Russ lived with me for a few years and we had some exciting experiences- believe me! I remember one time especially when the boys were very little, Jueldine had put the boys to bed for a nap and she had to leave for a few minutes. Si was working out by the barn so he was going to check on them every now and then. All of a sudden he heard a sound and, jerking around, he was shocked to see two little boys walking around on my roof! If he had asked me I could have told him that they woke up, climbed up on top of a little commode (dresser) which was under the window over my porch, opened that window and crawled out onto my porch roof!

It was a real shock for Si because not only were his two little boys (Rick, four years old, and Russ, two years old) out on the roof, but Russ was without his underwear! Imagine how hot my slate roof must have been on his bare bottom! It's a good thing my slates were good and strong or they might have fallen and hurt themselves. They didn't fall, but from the sounds I heard, I think part of them hurt for a while- especially when they sat down!

Well, they took good care of me, but they decided to build a new house in Pettisville and I was rented to other people for a few years. By that time, I needed quite a few repairs and the experts said it would cost too much to fix me, so they decided (oh, it pains me to say this!) to tear me down or burn me up and build a new one!

Well, do you remember Scott Wyse, one of Marv and Shirley's boys, who used to live with me? When he heard about their plans, he asked if he could have me. They said he could if he moved me away, so that is what he did! They raised me up on jacks, put me on wheels and moved me across the fields to Pettisville. Can you imagine an old house like me settled in my ways who has always lived on the same farm moving after all those years? When we got there, they put a beautiful new basement under me, re-plastered my walls, put in a new bathroom upstairs, new cupboards in the kitchen, new paint and wallpaper in every room and new covering on all the floors! I can't believe how beautiful I look and feel! Here I was ready for the scrap heap and now I hear everyone say how lovely I am.

I have been rented to several families since then, one of them was Marthella DeGroff (Christ and Mattie's great-granddaughter) and her boys and now Diane Roth and her children live with me. Once again my walls surround warm and loving families.

I may be old, but there are a lot of good years left in the old house yet!

Here I am- back again. It's October of 2003 and I'll try to give you a short update on the story of my life.

In the fall of 1988, Tom and Deanna Rupp, Marlin and Bueta Rupp's son and daughter-in-law, bought me from Scott Wyse and put in new windows and gave me new siding and a new lease on life. Now guess what! They have three children and my walls ring again with the sounds of children laughing and playing. In my upstairs rooms, I put my arms around the children, keeping them safe and warm while they sleep- just like I have every family who lived within my walls.

I think Christ and Mattie would be really happy to know that their great, great grandson and his family are living in the house where they raised their family so many years ago. I have been moved to a new location since then and I look a little different, but I'm still the same old house where so many of this family lived over the years. I am so well-built and strong that with some general maintenance by caring relatives, I'll still be sheltering the Wyse family descendants for many years to come.

DESCENDANTS OF JACOB HOCHSTETLER, THE IMMIGRANT OF 1736

By Rev. Harvey Hostetler of family 6026.

Published in 1912 and 1933, revised in 1977 by Eli Hostetler.

Submitted by Rosemary (Wyse) Reimer.

In the following account, “our ancestor” refers to Jacob Hochstetler. (No changes have been made, grammatically or otherwise, to the manuscript.) The Stutzmans can be traced back to the Hochstetler family. Please refer back to the family tree chart on pages 2 and 3 to see lineage.

IV. The Massacre

The Attack.

On the evening of September 19, 1757, that part of the country not having been disturbed since the Meyers murders in June, the young people of the neighborhood gathered at the home of Jacob Hochstetler to assist in paring and slicing apples for drying. At such gatherings it was the custom of the young folks after the work was done to have a social or frolic, sometimes continuing late in the night. After the young folks departed the family retired; and just about the time they were sound asleep, the dog made an unusual noise, which awakened Jacob, the son, who opened the door to see what was wrong, when he received a gunshot wound in the leg. He realized in a moment that they were being attacked by Indians and managed to close and lock the door before the Indians could enter. In an instant all the family were on their feet. The Indians, eight or ten in number, were seen standing near the bake oven in consultation, evidently near daybreak, as there was no moon that night, the last full moon having occurred September 7th.¹ There being no light in the house, those inside could not be seen. There were several guns and plenty of ammunition at hand. Joseph and Christian picked up their guns to defend the family. Two or three could be shot and the guns reloaded before the Indians could gain an entrance, but their father, firmly believing in the doctrine of Non-resistance, remaining faithful in the hour of sorest trial, could not give his consent. In vain they begged him; he told them it was not right to take the life of another even to save one's own. Joseph ever afterward claimed the family could have been saved had he given his consent, as they were both good, steady marksmen (their father also) and the Indians never stood fire unless under cover.

The House Set Afire.

The Indians stood in consultation for a few minutes and then set the house on fire. The family consisted of seven persons: The parents, Jacob, Jr., Joseph, Christian and a daughter, name not known; also Barbara Stutzman, probably not at home. As the fire progressed, they sought refuge in the cellar, while the Indians stood guard around the house. When the fire had advanced so far as to burst through the floor, its advance was checked by sprinkling cider on the burning spots.

As daylight was not nearing it was thought the enemy would not remain much longer and the family hoped to hold out until they departed. Meanwhile the disturbance attracted the attention of John, living on the adjoining farm. A few steps from his door he could see over to the old home, which being on fire, surrounded by the savages and all the family within, presented a shocking sight. The safety of his wife and child appealed to him. Hastening into his house he took and concealed them in a thicket of brush in a flat place about eighty rods south of his house, and returned to see what could be done for those at the old home. There was no telling where the enemy might strike next, hence he prudently concealed his tracks, and on reaching a place where he could observe the old home, the Indians were just finishing their bloody work.

Family Driven from the House.

The family had kept quiet in their retreat, beating the fire back as best they could, and beheld the Indians leaving one after another. The stay in their retreat could scarcely be endured longer and believing the enemy had all left, proceeded to get out through a small window in the basement wall. As they emerged, a young warrior, Tom Lions, about 18 years old, who had lingered behind gathering ripe peaches, observed them and gave the alarm.

The Murders.

The mother, being a fleshy woman, was with difficulty extricated; besides the wounded Jacob had to be assisted, and by the time the family were all out they were surrounded, were all easily captured except Joseph who, being swift-footed like a deer, circled around, eluded them and ran up the hill, followed by two Indians who had thrown their guns away, determined to take him alive. He easily outran them and beholding them give up the chase and return to the burning building, he dropped down behind a log. It happened that one of the Indians observed him, but they hastened to the scene of the carnage. The son Jacob and the daughter were tomahawked and scalped. But the mother, against whom they seemed to have a particular spite, was stabbed to the heart with a butcher knife and was scalped.

There is a tradition that years before hostilities broke out between the Delaware Indians and the white settlers, a party of Indians called at the Hochstetler home, being in want, begged subsistence, were refused and gruffly turned off by the mother Hochstetler. Some of the picked up a coal and drew a rude picture on the porch, which together with their grimaces forboded no good to the family, but seemed to indicate they were to take revenge. Some believe that but for this unkindness the family would never have been molested; but when it is considered that over 300 were murdered in that section of the country alone, it is not unlikely that our ancestors were singled out just for this unkindness. The manner in which mother Hochstetler was put to death, however, shows that they had some special grievance against her. The Indians at that time believed that to die under the tomahawk or to be shot was the death of a warrior, and therefore an honorable death, but to die in some other violent way was to them a dishonorable and disgraceful death; hence the mother was killed in that way, they not having time to burn her at the stake.

The Prisoners.

It is a tradition that when an Indian had raised his tomahawk over the head of Christian, he looked up, and as the Indian beheld his beautiful blue eyes, took a liking to him and spared him. The disturbance had also attracted the family of Jacob Kreutzer, residing to the west. They came running through the woods to the edge of the meadow, but on beholding what was going on they stopped, not being prepared to enter into a conflict with the savage foe. The bloody work being finished, they took Jacob Hochstetler and son Christian prisoners, left again in the direction they had started before, surrounding the place where Joseph was concealed and easily captured him. Had he known he could easily have made his escape, but he feared he might encounter Indians on ahead and so thought best to remain in his hiding-place. The barn and all out-buildings, including a distillery, were destroyed by fire before the Indians left. The father picked some ripe peaches and advised his sons to do likewise. He also advised them to submit gracefully to their fate as far as possible. At this late date only a meager account of all their experience can be given, and to understand such a narrative, one ought to be familiar with the environments and the manners and customs of the Indians at that time.

Impressions Made by the Massacre.

The raid upon our ancestor appears to have resulted also in several other deaths. The reports show that a soldier, Philip Summer, was killed the same day and that Michael Spright (possible Specht) and two children were made captive. The massacre made a profound impression. Under date of October 1, 1757, Col. Weiser wrote to Governor Dewey, "Captain Oswald, upon hearing the distress the people about Northkill were in, sent immediately two Lieutenants with forty private men to their assistance. I can not describe the consternation the people are in, in these parts."²

Three days later he again wrote from Heidelberg, "It is now come so far that murder is committed almost every day; there never was such consternation among the people; they must now leave their houses again with barns full of grain. Five children have been carried off last Friday; some days before a sick man killed upon his bed, begged of the enemy to shoot him through his heart, to which the Indian answered, 'I will,' and did so. A girl that had hidden herself under a bedstead in the next room, heard all this; two more families were about that time destroyed."³ The last reference is made probably to the family of our ancestor and that of Michael Specht.

The Massacre in the Newspapers.

In due time the news of the massacre reached the Philadelphia papers. The Pennsylvania Journal of October 6th had this: "From Reading we have advice that last Wednesday the enemy burnt the house of one Hochsteller and killed Hochstelle's wife and a young man, and himself and three children are missing." The other English paper in Philadelphia, the Gazette, about the same time had this: "We hear from Reading that on Thursday and Friday last some people were murdered in Bern Township by the Indians and others carried off."

The German paper in Philadelphia was The Journal, published by Christopher Sauer and issued twice a month. The issue of October 15th, 1757, under a general heading, Philadelphia, October 7th, has this: "In the same week the Indians came to Hoffstettler's place; the man called on his neighbors for help; meanwhile the Indians killed his wife and carried away his children, and burnt the house and barn. One son escaped."⁴ The same paper has the following from Tulpehocken, under date of September 30th: "I am sorry that I can not send you better news, as the Indians have again murdered many inhabitants beyond us. It is reported that there have been between forty and fifty Indians not far from Nicholas Langen's place. The poor people beyond us will all be obliged to move away. We stand in great fear. Yesterday we heard all day long of murder and death. No one however is ready to oppose the enemy."⁵

The Massacre in Official Reports.

A little later Col. Weiser directed the officers at several forts to report to him a list of those who had been killed or captured by the Indians since the beginning of the war. The reports of these officers are now in the manuscript department of the Pennsylvania Historical Society at Philadelphia. Extracts were printed in the Pennsylvania Magazine for July, 1908. Captain Jacob Orndt reported among others, "Highstealer's wife and one child killed and scalped; and three of his children taken captives in September, 1757, in Bern Township." This list was made at Fort Allen, and its author explains that he gives names and dates as nearly correct as possible. Our family is mentioned also in the report of Captain Jacob Morgan, who says that in the district south of the mountains he is not absolutely certain of names and dates, but gives the best information he can. Among those in Bern Township appears under date of September 20, 1757, Jacob Houghstetler and family, five killed and one wounded. The magazine account gives his name as Houghstetter, and also fails to show that this report was made by Captain Jacob Morgan.

It will be noted that the dates given in the newspapers do not agree absolutely with the date given by Captain Morgan. The account in the Journal speaks of the events as "last Wednesday," which doubtless refers to Wednesday, September 21. It is however possible that Captain Morgan's report may have had in mind the attack that began during the night following September 20, and the actual deaths occurred shortly after daybreak of the next day. However, as Captain Morgan made an effort to get the correct date, and as his is an official report, we may accept his date as correct.

V. The Captivity

Quite likely the prisoners' hands were tied and they made to walk at a rapid pace, making for the Blue mountains, which are in sight of the Hochstetler home and about two miles distant on a straight line. There is a tradition that while crossing the mountains they passed a clearing where a man named Miller, an ancestor of the numerous Miller family now residing in Holmes County and adjoining parts of Tuscarawas County, Ohio, was chopping. He was shot at and hit in the hand as he raised his ax; he fled and was not pursued. He may have belonged to the family of John Adam Miller, before mentioned as having been killed the previous April.

Indian Abuses of Prisoners.

Prisoners were always subject to many abuses on arriving at Indian villages; every old squaw or young Indian would hit them with switches and sometimes clubs and tomahawks. This was known to Hochstetler, who had saved some of the peaches from his home. He now with his sons approached the chief and those near him and presented them some peaches. This so pleased the chief that he immediately ordered the abuses stopped. It also saved them from going through what is called running the gauntlet, which was as follows: All Indians at the village or camp, both sexes, young and old, would stand in two rows facing each other, armed with switches, sticks and sometimes tomahawks or other implements and the unfortunate captive was made to pass through between two columns, everyone striking and some endeavoring to impede their progress by throwing sand or dust into their eyes, and woe unto one that was slow in the running; such a one was beaten unmercifully. At the end of the row stood in the guardhouse, where the prisoner for the time was free; but some indeed never reached it.

A Father's Parting Advice.

Before the father and sons were separated he gave them this parting advice in his Swiss dialect: "If you are taken so far away and be kept so long that you forget your German language, do not forget the Lord's Prayer." A timely and good advice. Being separated, they rarely if ever saw each other. During their captivity they were made to conform to Indian customs and were gradually dressed in that style. Indians grow no beards and would not tolerate it among their captives, hence they pulled out father Hochstetler's beard, also a part of the hair on the head, leaving a tuft or crown about four inches in diameter, which was braided and ornamented with feathers, etc. The pulling of the beard and hair on the head was done by taking a few hairs at a time and keeping on as if plucking a turkey until the job was completed to their notion. When the boys' beards became in evidence they were treated the same way. The winter following was a severe one. Much snow fell in the mountains and lay a long time. The soldiers of Fort Northkill were withdrawn, until the snow was gone, and the severe winter increased the sufferings of the captives.

While in captivity our ancestor was never permitted to know where he was, except once when in Erie, Pennsylvania, and once in Detroit, Michigan. They moved frequently from one village or place to another. In some places but few Indians were together while in other places large numbers gathered.

Experience of Joseph.

After the parting, Joseph was adopted into one of the families in full fellowship, or in other words, was made after their manner a full Indian. As he was a skilled hunter and backwoodsman, also noted for athletic sports, as Hertzler says in his Family History, page 152, he was respected, and after his adoption treated with the same kindness that any original Indian received. With solemn and impressive ceremony a white person was adopted into an Indian tribe. James Smith, who accompanied a number of men engaged by the Province of Pennsylvania to open up a road westward, was captured near Bedford in May, 1755, and has left us a full account of the ceremonies practiced in adopting him. He was taken into the Ohio territory to an Indian town called Tulhillas, on the White Woman, about 20 miles above the forks (or north of Coshocton). He says:

Method of Adoption.

"The day after my arrival at the aforesaid town, a number of Indians collected about me, and one of them began to pull the hair out of my head. He had some ashes on a piece of bark in which he frequently dipped his fingers, in order to take the firmer hold, and so he went on, as if he had been plucking a turkey, until he had all the hair clean off my head, excepting a small spot about three or four inches square on my crown; this they cut off with a pair of scissors, excepting three locks, which they dressed up in their own mode. Two of them they wrapped around with a narrow beaded garter made by themselves for that purpose, and the other they plaited at full length, and then stuck it full of silver brooches. After this they bored my nose and ears, and fixed me off with earrings and nose jewels; then they ordered me to strip off my clothes and put on a breech coat which I did; they then painted my head, face, and body, in various colors. They put a large belt of wampum on my neck, and silver bands on my hands and right arm; and so an old chief led me out in the street, and gave the alarm halloo, coo-wigh, several times repeated quickly; and on this, all that were in town came running and stood around the old chief, who held me by the hand in the midst. As at that time I knew nothing of their mode of adoption, and had seen them put to death all they had taken, and as I never could find that they saved a man alive at Braddock's defeat, I made no doubt but they were about putting me to death in some cruel manner.

Washing Out White Blood.

“The old chief holding me by the hand, made a long speech, very loud, and when he had done, he handed me to three young squaws, who led me by the hand down the bank, into the river, until the water was up to our middle. The squaws then made signs for me to plunge myself into the water, but I did not understand them; I thought that the result of the council was, that I should be drowned, and that these young ladies were to be the executioners. They all three laid violent hold of me, and I for some time opposed them with all my might, which occasioned loud laughter by the multitude on the bank. At length one of the squaws made out to speak a little English (for I believe they began to be afraid of me) and said, “no hurt you.” On this I gave myself up to their ladyships, who were as good as their word; for though they plunged me under water, and washed and rubbed me severely, I could not say they hurt me much.

“These young women then led me up to the council house, where some of the tribe were ready with new clothes for me. They gave me a new ruffled shirt, which I put on, also a pair of leggings done off with ribbons and beads, likewise a pair of moccasins, and garters dressed with beads, porcupine quills, and red hair, also a tinsel laced cappel. They again painted my head and face with various colors, and tied a bunch of red feathers to one of the locks they had left on the crown of my head, which stood up five or six inches. They seated me on a bear’s skin, and gave me a pipe, tomahawk, and polecat skin pouch, which had been skinned pocket fashion and contained tobacco, killegenico, or dry sumach leaves, which they mix with their tobacco, also punk, flint and steel. When I was thus seated, the Indians came in dressed and painted in their grandest manner. As they came in they took their seats, and for a considerable time there was profound silence. Every one was smoking, but not a word was spoken among them. At length one of the chiefs made a speech, which was delivered to me by an interpreter, and was as follows:

Speech of Adoption.

“My son, you are now flesh of our flesh, and bone of our bone. By the ceremony which was performed this day, every drop of white blood was washed out of your veins; you are taken into the Caughnewago nation, and initiated into a warlike tribe; you are adopted into a great family, and now received with great seriousness and solemnity in the room of a great man. After what was passed this day you are now one of us by an old strong law and custom. My son, you have now nothing to fear; we are now under the same obligations to love, support, and defend you, that we are to love and defend one another. Therefore you are to consider yourself as one of our people.’

“At this time I did not believe this fine speech, especially that of the white blood being washed out of me; but since that time I have found that there was much sincerity in said speech; for, from that day, I never knew them to make any distinction between me and themselves in any respect whatever until I left them.” It is quite likely that Joseph Hochstetler was, when adopted, initiated in a similar manner, being about the same age, and if he, or for that matter any of our family had any Indian blood in their veins, they must have got it in this way.

Is There Indian Blood in our Family?

It seems, however, that from this event came a saying that the Hochstetlers had Indian blood. No, one can not claim this distinction, however much some of us may desire it. How were it possible? The ancestors were a typical Swiss family; Jacob and wife, born and raised in Switzerland, were married there, and had at least one son three years old on coming to America. After all the children were nearly grown the mother and two children were murdered by the Indians. Now, all the descendents of Jacob Hochstetler came through his three sons, John, Joseph and Christian, and daughter Barbara Stutzman. John's wife, the mother of his ten children, was Catharina Hertzler, daughter of Jacob Hertzler. Joseph's wife, the mother of his children, was Anna Blank. The maiden name of Christian's wife was Rupp, all three Swiss names. If, therefore, any of our ancestor's family have Indian blood, it must have come in later, and at most only a small branch of the family could be related to the Indians.

Large Families.

It was also the boast of the earlier members of the family that they were free from hereditary diseases, such as consumption, hernia, epilepsy, or insanity, yet none of the earlier generations in America are known to have reached the age of eighty years. However, we can not but note the many large families with nearly all Biblical names. "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth," was the first blessing which the Creator in his wisdom bestowed upon mankind. True, there always have been, and always will be families with few or no children; such is God's will, but the custom of our age in America called "race suicide" can not be in accordance with the will of our Creator, and sooner or later evil consequences will follow. A family record, such as we frequently find in our genealogy, of from ten to fourteen children or more, is an honorable record and indicates a healthy condition both physically and morally; and when we study our family's past, let us search all things and hold fast to that which is good.

Experience of Christian.

Among the descendants of Christian there are several written accounts of his life, prepared at different times and by different persons and which vary more or less in details. These accounts make his age at captivity about ten years, which corresponds quite closely to the statement of his age made by his father in his petition to the Governor. Some of these accounts make his stay among the Indians seven years, while others make it as high as eleven years, which last is quite unlikely, as two of these accounts speak of his stay with the Indians "till the end of the war," and "peach was now restored," and "prisoners exchanged," which might refer either to the year 1762, but most appropriately to the year 1764. These accounts speak of his marriage shortly after his return, and his marriage is referred to as one of the elements that finally secured his consent to remain with the whites.

His Adoption.

According to these accounts, Christian was adopted by an aged Indian who treated him as a son. Another account states that this old Indian was given him to take care of. Christian was sent to hunt for game for the old Indian and himself. Sometimes he had to go long distances and remain away long, as game was scarce. These hunting trips gave him opportunity to escape, but he may not have known the way to his former home, and he would not forsake his old Indian friend, who would likely have starved if he had been deserted. After one long hunting trip he returned very much discouraged and very weak from want of food. The old Indian had been out for a short hunt and had found some wildcat kittens, which he had made into a soup or stew and Christian was glad for the feast. The old Indian believed the Great Spirit revealed to him the place where game was to be found and he would often send Christian to the place. The Indian's success in thus locating game made a deep impression on the mind of the boy, who had become much attached to his Indian friend, who lived but a year or two after Christian was placed in his care.

An Indian Brother.

After the death of his Indian father, in accordance with Indian law and custom Christian chose an Indian brother, to whom he also became deeply attached, and his love for this brother and the kindness he had received from the hands of the Indians generally made him very unwilling to leave them, and he found it hard to become reconciled to the ways of the whites after his return to them.

His Return.

One account of his return states that he walked to his father's house, and as he stepped into the kitchen, he found the family at dinner. He bade the time of day and returned to the yard and seated himself on a stump. After his father had finished his meal, he went to the man in the yard whom he supposed was an Indian and began a conversation with him. In broken German which he could scarcely recall, he said, "My name is Christian Hochstetler." We can easily imagine the joy and surprise of the father, who nevertheless found it not easy to get his son into the house for dinner. For some time he would not decide to forsake his Indian friends and make his home with the whites. The childhood home that he had cherished in his memory during the years of his captivity was no longer to be found.

His Conversion.

A short time after his return and marriage Christian was converted and joined the Tunker Church and soon became a preacher in that church. There was a Tunker congregation in Bern and Upper Tulpehocken Township, along the Northkill, several miles above the confluence of this stream with the Tulpehocken. A church was erected in 1748. In 1750 Elder George Klein came from New Jersey and settled among the members. Through his energy the congregation flourished for over twenty years, when the settlements further west attracted the families. It is likely that the ministry of Elder George Klein resulted in the conversion of Christian. Practically all the descendants of Christian to this day are in churches that practice baptism by immersion, and nearly all of them are members of some church.⁶

The Captivity of Jacob.

We now resume the adventures of our ancestor Jacob. He never became reconciled to savage life but longed for his home, desolate as it was. He never gave up the idea of freeing himself in one way or other. He tried to conceal his desire and feelings, acting as if he were contented and reconciled, but Indians were hard to deceive and in spite of his pretenses, they never fully trusted him. The war had now lasted about six years since 1754 and during the last two years the English and Americans were mostly successful. Canada was taken from the French by the English but the Indians continued their raids. It was at a time when all the men or warriors had gone on a raid to the settlements that he concluded the time had come for him to escape, or die in the attempt.

His Hunting Trips.

In the absence of the able-bodied men, Hochstetler was to provide for the families by procuring game. He was sent out daily to hunt, with orders to return at the close of the day if not sooner. He was given a gun, a few bullets, always counted, and a corresponding quantity of powder, with either a butcher knife or a tomahawk, but never both. On his return he was required to give an account of the ammunition used. If he did not bring home some game for every bullet used he had to explain why he missed. He desired more than a daily outfit for his escape, so he prepared a dry place in a standing hollow tree, where he daily stored away a little powder and a few bullets, which together with the outfit of the day he considered sufficient to venture the undertaking. Of course, he never saved more than one bullet in any one day and was obliged to give an evasive or misleading account.

Where Lay His Home?

But in what direction lay his home or the white settlements? And how far was he from the nearest settlements? These questions perplexed him. One day he noticed the old men explain something to the boys, using a stick with which they made rude marks in the ashes, which seemed to represent streams and mountains. He had acquired enough of the Indian language to understand they were making, in their way, a map of the country, showing the boys where their fathers had gone murdering. He dared not show that he understood what they meant, therefore passed to and fro apparently following his business, yet he managed to see them point to what seemed to represent a stream, which was called Susquehanna, another Allegheny, Monongahela, and mountains between these streams were named. It gave him a faint idea of his whereabouts and the course to pursue, as well as the distance to reach the settlements.

John Specht.

There was another captive in the village, a German named John Specht whom he desired to take with him, and the evening before the planned escape he took him into his confidence. In so doing he had to be guarded, as the Indians were suspicious when they, or for that matter, any prisoners conversed in German with none of their people present who understood it.

The Escape.

The morning followed the night, and Jacob Hochstetler was sent out as usual with his outfit; this day the butcher knife was given him. Specht starting under some pretense in another direction, the two met at an appointed place, the ammunition in the hollow tree was secured, and as much distance as possible put between them and the Indians they left behind who were old men, squaws and children, by whom there was not much danger of being pursued. The great danger to them lay in meeting hostile Indians who might return from their marauding, or might otherwise be scouring the woods.

A Surprise.

In the evening they concluded to encamp at a lonely place where there was an overhanging rock and where a fire could not be seen any distance. Imagine their surprise and embarrassment when on starting the fire a lone Indian came to them. This unexpected visit put a damper on their spirits. Both parties tried to conceal their embarrassment. From the appearance of the Indian it was believed that others were not far off, so Hochstetler immediately planned another escape. He advised Specht to gather wood for the fire, going a little farther every time he went out for a stick and pretending he was looking for a larger stick, go out of sight and escape, while he picked up his gun, telling the Indian he would try to secure some game for supper. They were to meet further up the little brook that ran close by. In talking to Specht he used the German, which was not understood by the Indian. Hochstetler waited at the upper end of the little run until dark, but Specht did not appear, so he returned and quietly approached their proposed camping place from above the rock. In doing this, he was obliged to use the utmost care to avoid being discovered. On reaching the edge of the rock he carefully looked down. The fire had been suffered to go down and was not burning bright, no living being was seen, but by the glimmering fire he saw what he took to be fresh meat and blood.

Jacob Flees Alone.

Believing that the Indian had killed Specht and was watching for him, he stealthily crept back and renewed his flight, never stopping for the night's rest. He went on in the direction of his home, as ascertained before he started, and stopped for rest only when completely exhausted. He often concealed himself in the daytime and traveled at night. He crossed streams and mountains until he reached what he thought was one of the head branches of the Susquehanna, which he followed. Though he never knew whether he was at any time pursued, he always used due precaution, to prevent being followed in case an attempt was made, wading through water at times to prevent being tracked by dogs, and in daytime generally avoided paths. As he followed the stream it grew larger and prospects seemed to brighten, so he decided to float down stream on a raft, which first had to be built.

The Raft.

Having selected a place where fire could not be seen from a distance he selected a dry fallen tree of proper thickness up on which he built some five or six "nigger fires."⁷ These were stirred and kept burning all night and by morning the trees were burnt through in as many places. The logs were dragged to the water, tied together with hickory withes, or wild grapevines, and on this frail raft the journey was continued. After some distance the course of the stream turned to the right and Jacob Hochstetler now believed he was on some other stream than the Susquehanna, probably the Ohio, which would take him away from home. He must have passed the present location of Pittston, Pa., about fifty miles to the north and a little to the east of his home. The river from this point follows a general southwestern direction till it reaches Duncannon, Perry County, a few miles above Harrisburg, where it turns to the southeast. Fatigued and nearly starved, he tied his raft and went on shore, about giving up in despair.

His Dream.

There is a tradition that he found a dead opossum full of maggots. He was so hungry that it tasted good and he ate until his hunger was appeased and then fell asleep, when his murdered wife appeared to him in a dream telling him to go on, that he was on the right way. When he awoke he took his raft, determined never to leave it until he reached the white settlements. Thus he reached Fort Harris on the site of the present city of Harrisburg. He was too weak to stand, made efforts to be noticed, but failed to be observed until past the place. A little below the fort there was a place where the river was forded when low; here a man was watering a horse, who observed a strange object floating downstream; he went and reported. The commander at the fort with his spyglass discovered that there was a white man on a small raft and signaled to him, but all Jacob was able to do was to hold up his arm. He was accordingly rescued with a skiff. A woman, probably Mrs. Harris, prepared his first meals for him. He soon regained his strength and from here had no trouble reaching his home. Before arriving at Fort Harris he must have passed two other forts, Fort Hunter about five miles above and Fort Augusta at the forks of the Susquehanna. From the latter the stream could not well be seen and Fort Hunter he may have passed in the nighttime. Take it all in all, his adventures were hazardous, the escape marvelous, and his whole life replete with incidents worthy of being preserved to posterity.

The Starting Place.

The place from whence our ancestor started when making his escape, and how long he was on the way on his perilous journey is not known. It seems he must have been somewhere in northeastern Ohio, or in adjoining northwestern Pennsylvania, or possibly in the southwestern part of the state of New York, all that part being then inhabited by the Indians, and he probably was on the way from three to four weeks, as he could seldom travel fast and often could not go a direct course. The only game he secured during his flight was a wild duck, being afraid to shoot lest he be found out. Besides the wild duck, he subsisted on some crawfish, nuts, buds and such edibles as could be obtained in the woods at that time of year, which according to the manner in which the fire was to be built the first evening, must have been perhaps in September or October, after he was with the Indians about three years, about the time the French surrendered. It may also have been in the early Spring, after the snows were gone, as the Indians often selected this season for their raids.

John Specht.

The exact fate of John Specht was never known. He never reached the settlements, and when the lone Indian later met the boys, Joseph and Christian, he made his boast that he had killed both their father and Specht, but his story was doubted by the boys.

Fort Harris.

Modern historians have been inclined to doubt that there ever was a fort built at that place. The facts are: John Harris built a house there in 1705 and established a trading post with the Indians and later obtained a permit from the government to operate a ferry. At one time he refused to give any more liquor to a party of Indians who came to trade with him had become drunk. This so enraged them that they tied him to a tree near his log house and were about burning him to death when another party of Indians from across the river happened to come in time to rescue him. When he died in 1748 he was buried at the foot of this tree at his own request. His son John was born in this house in 1726. When the Indians began murdering settlers on the Susquehanna on October 29th, 1755, at the outbreak of the war, portholes were cut in his house which was turned into a fort. Soldiers were stationed there. The house was large, with extensive sheds attached, and was frequently used for the storage of army supplies. Fortunately it was never attacked by the enemy. From 1758-60 the English gained ground, and having taken the forts, including Pitt on the Ohio and nearly all Canada, the French ceased fighting; but a treaty was not signed until 1765.

VI. THE RELEASE OF JOSEPH AND CHRISTIAN.

After his return from captivity our ancestor learned of the events that had occurred during his absence. The Indians had continued their depredations during the summer of 1758. As early as March 15th of that year his old neighbors sent a petition to Gov. Dewey asking protection against the Indians, who might make their attacks at any time, now that the snows were melting, and the weather growing fair. They stated in their petition that the blockhouse at Northkill was destroyed and no garrison kept there. During this summer, a man named Lebenguth, of Tulpehocken Township, and his wife were killed and scalped. Near the Northkill Nicholas Geiger's wife and two of his children were killed and scalped, also the wife of Michael Ditzelar. Several victories during the summer of 1758 practically brought the war to a close.

Councils at Easton.

On the request of the Indians a council was held with them at Easton, Pennsylvania, from October 8 to 26, 1758. This council was attended by Governor Dewey and others associated with him. A treaty of peace was agreed upon, and one of its conditions was that the Indians were to return all their prisoners and restore them to their friends, through Gen. Johnson who was to receive them. This treaty aroused the hopes of those who had lost relatives and friends and we can easily believe that the sorrowing family and friends of our ancestor would rejoice at the news. Very few captives however were returned.

Speech of Governor Hamilton

After nearly three years another council was held, August 3-12, 1761, at Easton, Pennsylvania, attended by Governor Hamilton. In his address to the Indians he reminded them of their former agreement about the captives and said, "Brethren, I am pleased to hear you sent to Gen. Johnson, our flesh and blood who were prisoners among the Cayugas. We esteem it as the strongest proof of your friendship which you can possibly give us. You all agreed at the treaty held here three years ago, that you would search all the towns and places in the Indian countries for them, and deliver them up to us, without leaving one behind, and if they had gone down your throats, you could heave them up again. I am sorry that but very few have been brought back, though I know there are a great many scattered up and down among the Indians. We can not help thinking that you speak only from the lips and not from your hearts, whatever professions of regard you make for us, till this promise is performed, and we see our fathers, mothers, and children, who have been carried into captivity, restored to us. This promise was the condition on which the peace belt was exchanged between us." These vigorous words from the Governor secured from the Indians another solemn promise that they would make every possible effort to restore all the captives that could be found among them. They agreed to bring them all to another council which was to be held the next summer at Lancaster.

Council at Lancaster.

This solemn assurance of the Indians aroused a widespread interest and expectation among those who had lost relatives and friends. The council was to meet at Lancaster, and begin its sessions the twelfth day of August, 1762. Previous to this date glowing reports came from the Indian country of the immense number of captives that were being brought that would be turned over to their friends. We can easily imagine the eager interest with which our ancestor hastened to Lancaster, with the expectation of securing his long-lost sons.

A Disappointment.

But the council proved a deep disappointment. Instead of the hundreds of captives that had been promised and expected there were about two dozen. But the Indians were very plausible in their excuses and apologies. They declared that the captives were unwilling to return as they had become strongly attached to their Indian friends. The chiefs also claimed they found it hard to induce their people to drive from them the captives who were unwilling to return to the whites.

The council opened August 12th. Our ancestor soon satisfied himself that his sons were not among the small number of restored captives, and he may have had tidings of them from Indians who were present. He was deeply disappointed, but would not give up to despair. But what could he do among the hundreds present looking for their captive friends? He was not accustomed to the transaction of business in a large public gathering such as this was. It is doubtful whether he could speak the English language which was used by the men in charge of the council. But he was unwilling to leave the council till he had made at least some effort to secure the return of his sons. We can easily believe that he spent an anxious, troubled night but in the morning he had decided what to do.

Jacob's Petition.

By the assistance of some friend he prepared a petition which he presented to the Governor, who was very busy in the council, and who could ill spare time for the needs of a humble individual like our ancestor. But the Governor received the petition, which has been preserved and is in print in the Pennsylvania Archives, Vol. 4, p. 99, and is as follows:

Petition of Jacob Hockstetter to Governor Hamilton, 1762.

To the Honorable James Hamilton, Esq., Lieutenant Governour of Pennsylvania,
The Humble Petition of Jacob Hockstetler of Berks county, Humbly Sheweth:

That about five Years ago your Petitioner with 2 Children were taken Prisoners, & his wife & 2 other children were killed by the Indians, that one of the said Children who is still Prisoner is named Joseph, is about 18 Years old, and Christian is about 16 Years & a half old. That his House & Improvements were totally ruined & destroyed. That your Petitioner understands that neither of his Children are brought down, but the Embassadour of King Kastateeloca, who has one of his Children is now here.

That your Petitioner most humbly prays your Honour to interpose in this Matter, that his Children may be restored to him, or that he may be put into such a Method as may be effectual for that Purpose.

And your Petitioner most humbly prays your Honour to interpose in this Matter, that his Children may be restored to him, or that he may be put into such a Method as may be effectual for that Purpose.

And your Petitioner will ever pray, &c.

Aug. 13, 1762.

Jacob X Hocksteter.

Where was the Petition Written?

This petition does not give the name of the place at which it was written, but it was evidently written at Lancaster, as seen in the words "now here," referring to the place where the Indian Embassador then was, at Lancaster with the Governor holding the council. The words "brought down" would be appropriate at Lancaster, as used by one living in Berks County near the mountains, or it might refer to the higher regions to the north and west where the Indians lived.

It is not known where the original paper of this petition is. Recent inquiry was made in the Archives department of the State Library at Harrisburg for it, as also for the original copy of the Northkill Journal, but the custodian was unable to locate either. As the document is printed, the name of our ancestor is spelled three different ways, or a different way each time it was written.

Results of Petition.

The petition may have been of some help. The Governor would doubtless bring the matter to the attention of the Indian Embassador, who could not well do anything else than agree to do his best for the release of the captives named and described in the petition. At any rate, one of the sons, according to the best traditions in the family, was restored soon after, to his family, after a captivity of about five years. The writer has reason for believing that this was Christian⁸, though the written accounts in the family of Christian make the shortest time of his captivity seven years, and the account among the descendents of Joseph as appears in the note to fam. 7174, fixes his captivity at six years.

The Ages of the Sons.

The age of the boys as given in the petition was 18 and 16½ years respectively, the petition dated August 13th, 1762. The writer has reason to believe that the father had in mind their age at time of capture, that being the age given by my grandfather, who saw them both in their later years, as well as their brother John who saw them being taken away. Besides, it is not likely that Joseph and Christian if they were only 13 and 11½ years old would pick up their guns and defend the family and beg their father to allow them to shoot, their parents belonging to the defenceless people. The writer has yet several palpable reasons why he thinks the father in giving their age had in mind the time of capture, but the reader can have his choice.

Pontiac's War.

The work of restoring the prisoners was retarded by a second Indian uprising in 1763 under the celebrated Indian chief Pontiac. The Indians were not satisfied when the French surrendered their lands to the English. Pontiac, a powerful and warlike chief, rekindled the fires of war, and by stratagem and treachery recaptured nine of the twelve forts from the English but the Delawares failed to take the three forts assigned to them.

Col. Bouquet Defeats the Indians.

Col. Henry Bouquet, a brave and sagacious officer, was sent with an army into the Indian territory to chastise them. In August, 1763, he defeated them with great slaughter at Bushy Run, Pa., and soon after occupied Pittsburg. The following year he marched an army into the Ohio territory, to the Tuscarawas and Muskingum, and built a stockade near the present Bolivar in Tuscarawas County, Ohio. On October 17th, 1764, Colonel Bouquet met a number of Indian chiefs further south, probably in the edge of the Dover Plains, and at this spot was consummated an agreement which resulted in the restoration of all the white prisoners held by the Delawares and other tribes. From the Plains, near the present Strasburg, he continued his march to the forks of the Muskingum, the present Coshocton, where the treaty was ratified by the several tribes, and the last prisoners surrendered.

The Indians had become discouraged by their decisive defeat the previous year. They had been forsaken by their previous allies, the French, and had trouble in agreeing among themselves. So they had approached Col. Bouquet for a council and were very anxious for peace on any terms.

Bouquet's Council with the Indians.

At the council of October 17th, 1764, there were present, representing the Delaware Indians, Custaloga, chief of the Wolf tribes, the chief named in our ancestor's petition; and Beaver, chief of the Turkey tribe, with twenty warriors. These two chiefs at the close of their speech delivered eighteen prisoners and eighty-three small sticks, representing the number of prisoners in their possession and which they agreed to deliver as soon as possible.

⁸ I was so informed by my father and grandfather.

Return of Captives.

On November 9th, the Delaware chiefs Beaver and Custaloga had brought in all but twelve of their prisoners but Col. Bouquet refused to shake hands with them or have the least talk with them while a single captive remained among them. This firmness impressed these chiefs that they must use sterner measures among their people to secure the return of the captives, who were as unwilling often to be restored as the Indians were to give them up. On November 24th, Custaloga and the Senecas delivered the last three of their prisoners. December 1st of this year Col. Bouquet wrote to the Governor of Pennsylvania that he had sent under care of Lieutenant Col. Clayton all the captives belonging to Pennsylvania and had delivered several others to their parents and relatives.⁹ There were, however, a few prisoners that could not be brought to the authorities because they were at a distance, and on account of the severity of the winter which had set in.

The remaining captives were brought to the authorities the following spring, so that Sir William Johnson signed with the Delaware Indians, May 8th, 1765, a treaty of peace, after they had delivered to Col. Bouquet all the prisoners in their possession.¹⁰

Restoration of Joseph.

It was by reason of Col. Bouquet's success that Joseph Hochstetler was restored to his folks. Some of the captives accompanied the retiring army to Pittsburg, arriving just before the close of the year 1764, while others, who were too far from the Tuscarawas Valley, could not be brought in and returned until the following spring. It is not known whether Joseph returned late in the fall of 1764 or the following spring.

Place of Restoration.

From a letter written by John Hertzler, author of the Hertzler Genealogy, we learn of the kindly treatment of Joseph by the Indians, and "when they brought him down the Susquehanna River, to the Fort on the east side of the river, near where Sunbury is now, in Northumberland County (Fort Augusta), by treaty, they tried to have him go back with them and live with them as brothers. He often visited them and enjoyed himself hunting, fishing, running and jumping." John Hertzler's mother, Barbara Zug, was a niece of the wife of Joseph, the captive.

Over two hundred captives were brought to Col. Bouquet in the fall, while about a hundred could not be brought in before spring. The Ottoways and other northern tribes had killed nearly all their white prisoners. Many of the captives had been taken when young, and did not remember their names or place of their former homes. Such were taken to Carlisle, Pennsylvania, and notice given that those who had lost relatives might have a chance to find them. Many touching scenes occurred here, but in this work they can not be given any further attention. Of the captives surrendered under Bouquet, the names of about two-thirds are given in the Pennsylvania Archives, but Joseph's name is not found among them.

Indian Treatment of Captives.

There has been much misapprehension of the treatment of their captives by the Indians, and many have thought it strange that the captives could be satisfied with their Indian associations. A writer in the Pennsylvania Gazette of July 25, 1765, speaking of the kindness of the Indians toward their prisoners, says: "Cruel and unmerciful as they are, by habit and long example in war, yet whenever they come to give way to the native dictates of humanity, they exercise virtues which Christians need not blush to imitate. When they once determine to give life, they give everything with it, which in their language, belongs with it.

“Among those who had lived long with the Indians it is not expected that any marks of joy would appear on being restored to their parents or relatives. Having been accustomed to look upon the Indians as the only connections they had, and having been tenderly treated by them and speaking their language, it is no wonder they considered their new fate in the light of a captivity and parted from the savages in tears.”

Speech of a Shawnee Chief.

The same kindly ideas are brought out in the speech of a Shawnee chief in the council with Col. Bouquet, on surrendering his captives. “Fathers, we have brought your flesh and blood to you: they have all been united to us by adoption; and though we now deliver them, we will always look upon them as our relations, whenever the Great Spirit is pleased that we visit them. We have taken as much care of them as if they were our own flesh and blood. They are now become unacquainted with your customs and manners: and therefore we request you will use them tenderly and kindly, which will induce them to live contentedly with you.”

It is related of Joseph that, although the Indians had murdered his mother, brother and sister, and committed many other atrocities, he had become so attached to them and their customs and manner of living that he hesitated long before he decided to leave them and readopt civilization and live with the whites. The mutual attachment between him and his Indian brethren was such that it was kept after his return.

In due time he married, as will be seen elsewhere in this work, and settled down, but the habits he acquired during his long captivity never fully left him.
